

Build a Bike

Your Team must use their Wits and Creativity to Build Bikes from Scratch in a Race Against Time and Each Other

Suggested Agenda

- Icebreaker: Team members learn about themselves and their teammates in a fast-paced free for all designed to organize your team into smaller groups. Team names and leaders are chosen.
- Questionnaires are distributed to groups from which the answers to some of the clues will come, so the better each group gets to know the other teams during the process, the more successful their outcome will be.
- Instructions and ground rules are offered by our facilitator.
- Clues are distributed to each group.
- Groups begin to acquire the necessary materials and labor to build their bike.
- Challenges such as having too many of a specific part or not enough of another begin to develop.
- Groups must discover that in order to succeed, they are not competing with each other, but instead are competing against scarce resources, just like at the office.
- At the conclusion, groups will compete in a relay race on their bikes to determine which groups have been the most successful.

Much more than the common, pep-rally scavenger hunt or challenge course, The Build a Bike Workshop is a brainy, challenging, program where your group is divided into teams to solve specific challenges in order to build bicycles for needy families. Each team is given puzzles to solve, codes to decipher, and secrets to unlock in order to acquire the resources need (part by part) to build their bicycle. Challenges are discovered along the way that must be overcome in order to accomplish their goal.

During your half-day or full-day event, you'll engage both your minds and your bodies in solving the puzzles of teamwork.

We'll cover ways to:

- Brainstorm
- Problem-solve
- Communicate better as a team
- Interact better with different personalities
- Collaborate better as a team
- And have tons of fun in the process.
